Since the performance of my EME antenna's became remarkable worser and worser, it was time to investigate the reason for this degradation.

As my antenna's cannot be reached easily, i decided to prepare some fixes to do at the same time. Both 4-way splitters shall be replaced and all feeders must be changed. Double T-match is what i prepared for my fix. Although known for lower frequencies practical and informative information using this type of matching for 432Mhz failed. Experiments and results are described in this article.
